THE NEW COMPACT

 That if we focus on learning, conversation, and seeing knowledge as a dynamic process instead of artifacts, we can better serve our communities, gain greater resources, and ultimately improve society.

"And libraries? They hire library school graduates. In case the penny hasn't dropped, let's do the comparison in our heads. On the one hand, we have the best engineers and programmers in the country, and on the other hand we have...library school graduates. Unless the ALA can lobby successfully for some anticompetitive labor standards favoring librarians, l don't see how libraries are going to compete." -The Annoyed Librarian don't see how libraries are going to compete. -The Annoyed Librarian "Librarians should just relax, because they're not going to reinvent anything. They never have. They never will. That's not what libraries are for, but a lot of librarians like to get all hot and bothered that they can't compete in a field they never entered in the first place."
